LEAD AND COTTON TO CHINA .- We mentioned. a day or two since, the sailing of the ship Delhi from New Orleans for Canton, with 2,363 bales of cotton and 6,626 pigs of lead. Another ship (the Ceylon) sailed from the same port on the same day, with 1,342 bales of cotton and 5,735 pigs of lead, for St. Petersburgh. Our lead now goes to all parts of the world, not excepting Eng. land. The quantity shipped to China in the year 1842 is stated at over $250,000 in value. The shipment of cotton to that country from the United States is something new. A few bales were shipped in 1840, probably by way of experiment; but none in 1841. Now a single vessel carries out 2,363 bales. Instead of India cotton driving us out of the English market by its cheapness and abundance, (as had been predicted by some,) we are invading a market which India cotton has hitherto monopolized. We carry our cotton 8,000 or 10,000 miles further than the India factors do theirs, and yet contrive, if not to presumed. In 1839 our whole exports of lead to all countries amounted to only $6,003 in value; in 1840, $39,687; in 1841, $96,748; in 1842, as stated above, $250,000 to China alone, and a large amount to other countries. [Jour. Com.

Sanps's Sarsaparilla. —Still further proof of the superior officacy of Sands's Sarsaparilla:

Messix, Sands: Gents—Under a feeling of lively gratitude implanted in the human breast, I feel bound to acknowledge and declare to the world the great, and to me, important benefit derived from the use of your justly celebrated preparation of Sarsaparilla. Your name will be chrished with the fondest recollections of delight so long as memory proves faithful to her trust; for it is to you, under the blessing of an overruling Frovidence, I am now indebted for my health. As an act of justice on my part, and with a view to set forth (feebly as it may appear) in good faith my hearty wish that others who may read may learn where relief may be found who are suffering from any similar complaint to my own. Chronic Rheumatism is the disease when readered me a crivide, as it attacked my arms very severely, so that I was unable to lift my hands to my head, owing to the excruenting pains; it also seized upon my beas, so that I was entirely helpless. For two months I lay suffering without obtaining relief from various remedies prescribed, when I was toff of your medicine, which I vent for, and to my utter astonishment, and that of my trends, in two weeks I was well, and able to go about my trends, in two weeks I was well, and able to go about my trends, in two weeks I was well, and able to go about my trends, in two weeks I was well, and able to go about my trends, in two weeks I was well, and able to go about my trends, in two weeks I was well, and able to go about my trends, in two weeks I was an entirely helpless.

Circuiary.—The Manager of the American Museum proposes adopting a plan which has been frequently suggested by numerous intelligent and respectable merchants and manufacturers in New York, and other portions of the country, and which he is ef opinion will prove highly advantageous to the commercial and manufacturing community.

Having recently added a large and beautiful Hall to the Museum, more than 100 fest in length, and also raised the roof of the building, thereby greatly increasing its dimensions, the manager intends appropriating one of the spacious saloous attached to this extensive establishment, for the reception and display of Carros of Business of every description, painted and gilded, or printed and nearly framed and glazed, and all arranged under their appropriate heads.

Specimens of goods, wares, inventions, foreign and domestic manufactures, and productions, can also be deposited in slow cases, similar to those exhibited at the Great Fairs of the American and Mechanics Institutes. Each object will be placed in a position that will render it almost impossible for a person to avoid secing it.

Taking into consideration the fact that in the course of a year oven four HUNDRED THOUSAND PERSONS visit the Museum from every quarter of the Union, and that a great number of these, too, are business men, coming to New York for the express purpose of purchasing such goods, wares. &c., there can be no doubt that this is the most eligible and efficient medium of advertising that can be adopted. Those who visit a museum generally remain several hours, and thereby have sufficient time to notice everything; and it is certainly very resonable to suppose that Misiness men will take particular pains to examine Carros of Business, and the various specimens of goods and waves which they are in the habit of purchasing.

Many inventions and articles of manufacture are of such a nature that no written or printed description can give so correct an idea to a stranger as to look at and examine them. The manager of the Minseum will, therefore, employ a person whose whole time will be devoted to the exhibition of these articles, explaining their qualities and uses, and, if desired, obtaining orders and selling goods on commission. He will also advertise the name, occupation, and residence of each deposition in one hundred thousand museum bills per annum.

The price for exhibiting a card of business, neatly gilded, or printed and trained, all sizes under 12 by 15 inches, including advertising in the bills, will be $3 per year—larger sizes in preportion. Show cases and specimens of goods will be charged from $5 to $15 per unum, according to the space the coccupy. Receipts will be given for goods deposited, and their safety resuled, except against fire, and insurance against fire may be effected for a trifle.
